Is there anyway to make a custom sorting of a list? I am reading book of MongoDB.

The book demonstrates the algorithms of MongoDB (the case 1 is array sort and the case 2 is documents re-arrange). The case 1 is an array sort. The case 2 shows that we can make a customized sorting of documents by using mongoose. `Schema.pre('remove', function (next, doc, opts) { return Array.apply(null, this.fields).sort(function (a, b) { return a - b }).slice(0, opts.limit); });` As you can see that the problem is the rearrange documents, not the array sort. The user needs a customized sorting of each documents, so, I don't want to implement it in the javascript like the `mongoose.Schema.pre('remove', function(next, doc, opts) { return Array.apply(null, this.fields).sort(function(a, b) { return a - b }).slice(0, opts.limit); });`, because the arrays are very large and it is not reasonable to implement in the javascript. Is there anyway to make this situation? A: Assuming you have arrays of documents with just text fields, you could use `map()` to flatten all the fields in an array of documents into an array of strings and then use `sort()` and then `map()` again to re-arrange the documents: `var sorted = arrayOfDocuments.`
