Samsung will lease the new head office as part of a plan to build up a stable engineering workforce in Malaysia that it believes can help it tap into the local market. The head office will be located at Pavilion Cyberpark, near its mobile R&D hub in Ampang, currently home to more than 1,000 employees. The company will initially be based there only for six months until it is ready to accommodate more workers. The location would also be a suitable headquarters for Samsung to collaborate with local technology startups and potential partners. It will have a 1,000 sq m showroom area with a focus on retailing and promotions on the GS5, with production based in the southeastern city-state. The office will have an antechamber to the showroom featuring iPads showcasing products, a conference hall, space for product and press conferences, offices and production teams for the GS5. "The office will be divided into two sections.

One will be the human resources section and the other will be for engineering and manufacturing,” said a source. However, the new head office will not replace the current operations at Ampang currently occupied by 1,000 employees. It’s a move that Samsung is yet to officially announce. According to trade publication IHS iSuppli, Samsung could be planning to produce the GS5 locally by the end of this year, saying its smartphone models will keep selling well in the first half of the year. “The arrival of the flagship Galaxy S5 should improve Samsung’s market share and the potential to benefit from this is considerable,” said Devinder Kumar, principal smartphone analyst at IHS. “This is not only a statement of confidence for Malaysia’s semiconductor technology industry but also a reaffirmation of Samsung’s commitment to its electronics ecosystem 6d1f23a050
