Pharmacognosy And Phytochemistry Vin

As a leading scientific journal of pharmacognosy and phytochemistry in the region, the journal publishes scientific research articles with a varying range of topics including traditional drugs from all over the world. The articles deal with all types of content including herbals, therapeutic plants, phytochemistry, pharmacognosy, and so on. This journal has no minimum word or page limit for the manuscripts submitted, except that the articles should not exceed 10,000 words. As traditional herbal medicines continue to show good promise as an effective and affordable treatment for various diseases, there is an increasing realization of the need for scientists to understand the principles governing the effectiveness of traditional medicines. Accordingly, the journal is planning to launch a special issue focused on phytochemistry and pharmacognosy of traditional herbal medicines, such as those used to treat common diseases in developing countries. The journal is known for its high-quality papers and broad coverage of new and interesting medicinal plants with detailed phytochemical and pharmacognosy information. It is one of the most prestigious journals in pharmacognosy and phytochemistry, which is an advance in the fields of natural products research. This field, as a rapidly growing domain, will offer more challenges for this journal to keep up with the academic development of the journal. The journal is for the publication of original, concise, well-written research papers, including theoretical and experimental biological and pharmacological studies. The articles should be understandable and scientifically sound and should contribute to the basic knowledge of the readers. During all stages of the review process, three members of Editorial Board take part, one of them as the rapporteur, who is responsible for the comments and revisions. The Editorial Board is composed of experts in the fields of pharmacognosy and phytochemistry from different regions of the world. 5ec8ef588b
