After I selected a photo from a CD, and then created my black-and-white scene, I went to the Select menu. Instead of highlighting objects, you click and drag the Quick Selection tools over the objects in an image. I selected the image area containing the Grand Canyon, and then used the Quick Selection tools to create my selection. I then used the Pencil tool to highlight the Grand Canyon, which provided me a way to adjust the height of the view, so I could see everything.
